Brief References to a Few of Many Charming Bowers of

CHEROKEE ROSE WORTH SEEING.

The grounds in front of many of the residences in the city present a handsome appearance with their wealth of flowers and foliage, quite in contrast to the very plain appearance of the grounds before the colonia residence on Ridgewood avenue owned by E. N. Waldron, was built.

In the rear of his residence, however, Mr. Waldron has a store of plant life that is a surprise and a delight to the beholder, his aim being to collect and test the more rare plants and vines, the latter appealing particularly to his fancy.

Chief among the vines is a magnificent perennial, a red morning glory received from the agricultural department at Washington, which has climbed to the branches of a large dead tree, covering it with a mass of glowing coral. On the same tree is also a fine vine of mock clematis and near by a solanum of the giant variety. Mr. Waldron also has the boughanilla and other choice climbers and in addition to his vines he has quite a variety of plants, shrubs and trees, including loquats, bananas, pa-payas and other tropical and semi-tropical things.

The papaya, or tropical pawpaw, is a curious and interesting plant or tree, some of them being twelve or more feet in height, the trunk or stem thickly studded with the green and ripening fruit, looking not unlike a small nutmeg melon and of somewhat similar flavor.

Mr. Waldron is as fond of the birds as he is of the plants and encourages them to make their homes about him, having planted several mulberry trees for their benefit and making a practice of scattering grain for them every morning.

Visitors who stroll leisurely along Beach street invariably stop and look with admiration upon the bright roses in the well kept surroundings at the Commodore Burgoyne residence. It has long been one of the beauty spots of Beach street.

It was for many years contended that roses would not thrive in this climate and soil. Quite the reverse is true, as is being abundantly demonstrated every day. Take a stroll down Palmetto avenue and see one of the grandest specimens of the Cherokee rose—a native Floridian—you ever feasted your eyes upon. It was transplanted there a comparatively few years ago and has since encompassed everything in sight. Had a trellis been built 50 feet across and the rose pushed trained to cover it it would have been equal to the task. This specimen is worth going miles to see. Commodore J. H. Allen had it put there.

F. M. Rowe and Louis Adler are two prominent citizens who are enthusiastic on rose growing and have grown so by their eminent success in recent rose culture. If any reader is skeptical on the subject of successful rose culture in Daytona let him take a peep at Messrs Adler and Rowe's yards. Mr. Rowe has a Madame Lombard two years old which measures 12 feet across the top, and a Marchal Neil 3 years old 30 feet long.
A Magnolia rose 3 years old is 15 feet high and has been cut back three times.

Mr. Adler has some magnificent specimens, and as for Poinsettias his premises are aflame with them, and he has supplied cuttings till the town is becoming Poinsettiaed radiant. Mr. Adler says the rose fairly revels in the salt air and this is reflected in the healthy, beautiful foliage; and as for daintiness, exquisite coloring and delicate fragrance they cannot be surpassed anywhere.

J. W. Shields, on Volusia avenue, has a variety of young roses which are showing remarkable growth; C. C. Mellor, of Pittsburg, has a wilderness of thrifty roses at his Ridgewood place. W. W.
Ledwith is looking after the Mellor place and a number of others which he is gradually transforming into bowers of beauty.

It would require a volume to go over the city and note the flower features.
The taste for flower ornamentation is contagious and is rapidly spreading and if it continues to grow as it is now growing Daytona will become as famous for floral displays as she is for fine beach, good sailing, unsurpassed sidewalks, hang-up automobiles, pretty girls, rich widows and other attractions too numerous to mention.

The Waist Came Back.
"The other day I hung my prettiest waist out on the line at the kitchen window," said the flat dweller, "after I washed it. Then I forgot all about it, and when I went to look for it two days later it was gone. I rushed furtively down to the janitress, and we slid together over the coal into the area to look for the waist. I lamented deeply. It was a beautiful waist. We couldn't find it. The janitor came from the next house and helped us look, but there was nothing doing. I came sadly in at the window back over the coal and ascended to my sixth story flat.

"The next day I looked in the drawer of my chiffonier and found the waist there. Say anything to the janitress?
Well, I reckon not."—New York Press

The Invisible Point.
It was an awfully old joke, but the American thought it might cause his English friend to generate a smile.
"Just before I sailed for Liverpool," said the American, "I dreamed that I was dead, and the boat woke me up."
"So?" rejoined the Englishman seriously. "The weather must be beautiful in America."—Chicago News.

NEWS OF THE HOTELS

The Prince George.

Managers Hilyard and Holroyd of the Prince George will aim to make their first Christmas in Daytona one to be remembered, and the guests at that place were promised a dinner that is gotten up only in the best of hostilities.

The Ridgewood.

O. D. Livingston, of Boston, arrived at The Ridgewood yesterday.
The annual Christmas dinner will be served at The Ridgewood to the early season guests, and a pleasant afternoon and evening is anticipated.

Schmidt's Hotel.

Extensive preparations had been made at this popular house for the proper observance of Christmas, and at the appointed hour, 7:30, the large dining room was thrown open and the guests and a few invited friends filed in to behold a beautiful Christmas tree bedazzled with myriads of lights and tinsel with all the colors of the rainbow. The tree was fairly groaning with its load of remembrances, among which were many of value. Every one was remembered, and young and old were thoroughly pleased with the efforts of the management for their entertainment.

Despland Hotel.

J. F. Seiner, of Washington, D. C., and F. D. Stiddam of New York were the arrivals at The Despland Thursday.
Theo. Dunn and wife of Orange, N. J., and C. E. Hazeltine and wife of New York formed a jolly fishing party from The Despland yesterday. The party went to the Keatinge casino, where they had remarkable luck, making a fine catch. However, the afternoon's sport was somewhat marred by the fact that Mr. Dunn lost his pole which he valued very highly.

The Despland has a large number of guests for this time of the season, and accordingly the Christmas menus prepared under the direction of Manager Waite will be generous, in keeping with the season.

Christmas Melons.

J. H. Johnson brought in a couple of water melons Thursday from the Brubaker farm in the western part of the city and put them on exhibition at Norman S. Dayton's and R. L. Smith's real estate offices. They were from a volunteer vine and while a curiosity to our northern visitors are not so unusual with us.

Mrs. Troy Remembered.

The guests of the Troy house sprung a surprise on their landlady and presented her a beautiful clock and wall mirror.
The presentation speech by Professor Wright was graceful and the response most timely.

A Tart Answer.

A young and newly married couple were entertaining their friends, and among the guests was one whose continued rudeness made him extremely objectionable to the rest of the company. His conduct, although most unbearable, was put up with for some time until at supper he held up on his fork a piece of meat which had been served to him, and in a vein of intended humor he looked round and remarked:

"Is this pig?"
This immediately drew forth the remark from a quiet looking individual sitting at the other end of the table:
"Which end of the fork do you refer to?"—London Graphic.

Not Grasping.
"What a grasping fellow you are, Hawkins! You're bothered me about this bill fifty times in ten days."
"You wrong me, Jarley. I'm not grasping. I've bothered you about the bill, I admit, but I haven't been able to grasp anything yet."

Found Him Guilty.

Counsel (to the jury): The principal fault of the prisoner has been his unfortunate characteristic of putting faith in thieves and scoundrels of the basest description. I have done. The unhappy man in the dock puts implicit faith in you, gentlemen of the jury!

She Had to Mend Them.
Benham—I believe in putting my best foot forward. Mrs. Benham—I have noticed that your toe always goes right through your stocking.— New York Press.

An Irish philosopher says it's a great blessing that night comes on late in the day when one is too tired to work longer.
